

Keith Evans

BA (Hons) Dip Arch RIBA
Associate

Keith is an Associate who has worked at Design Engine for more than 6 years. He was recently responsible for the design and delivery of the John Payne building for Oxford Brookes University and is now leading the Facades team for the £120m project as part of the next phase in the development.

Before joining Design Engine in 2003, Keith worked at Allies and Morrison where he was the project architect for their award-winning office headquarters building at 85 Southwark Street London.

Keith studied at Portsmouth University where he has recently returned as a visiting tutor to teach Degree Students. Keith also studied at Westminster University and the Bartlett in London. As a student he won the Bannister Fletcher Dissertation prize for his study on 'Colour Space' in art and Architecture.

2003-Present Design Engine Architects, Associate

Oxford Brookes University, New Teaching & Learning building 2007-2013, (£120m): Associate responsible for the Facades.

Oxford Brookes University, John Payne Building, 2009, (£4.5m):
Project Architect. The building has recently achieved a 'very good' rating under the 2006 BREEAM assessment.

Winchester University, University Centre, 2007, (£7m):
Project Architect. The project won an RIBA award in 2008.

Winchester University, UOW Masterplan, 2007-2017:
Worked with the University to strategically develop the campus over the next 10 years.

Hanningfield Estates, Warley Reservoir Office Park, Essex, 2009, (3m):
Project Architect. The existing pump houses were sympathetically converted and the reservoir has been adapted to create a modern office environment where the character of the industrial past is complemented by light-touch new architecture.

HCT, Hill Close Gardens visitor centre, Warwick, 2006. (£0.3m):
Project Architect. Set within the historically significant Hill Close Gardens in central Warwick, the building is carbon neutral, meets the governments energy targets for 2050 and won the EEDA 'Force' Environment Award.

Guernsey Housing Association, Roseville Housing, Guernsey, 2005 (£5.1m)
Project Architect. RIBA Award 2007 and Civic Trust Special Housing Award 2007, RTPI South West Commendation 2008.

1997-2000 Allies and Morrison Architects, Senior Architect

85 Southwark Street, London, 2003, (£6m)
Project Architect. Bespoke new headquarters office building for A&M Architects

Land Securities, 333 Oxford St. office + retail building, London, 2002, (£15m)
Facade Package Architect. New mixed use office and retail building on a landmark site at the intersection of Oxford Street and New Bond Street.

John Payne, Oxford Brookes University

Winchester University Centre

Roseville Housing, Guernsey

85 Southwark Street, London